Introduction to the Topic

Somali piracy remains a major challenge to international security today. While international naval operations have significantly reduced the number of hijackings (12 recorded in 2023), the underlying issues remain unresolved: judicial gaps have led to the release of 70 per cent of apprehended pirates, poverty on land continues to breed criminality, and the legitimacy of privately armed escorts continues to be disputed. This Council will confront three core issues head-on:

- (1) Whether to extend naval counter-strike authority to Somali territorial waters;
- (2) How to establish an effective piracy trial mechanism;
- (3) How to eradicate hotbeds of piracy through development assistance.

Here, you will experience the power game of the Security Council in depth: how do the five permanent members weigh the principle of sovereignty and the authorization of force? How do coastal countries seek international support? Delegates need to react quickly in crisis scenarios (e.g., sudden hijacking) and adopt draft resolutions that balance military, judicial and developmental means. This is a real-world exercise in international law, security policy and global governance, and each of your clauses could reshape the future rules of the Gulf of Aden.

Embodiment of the Council's core powers

- How do the P5 play the game? How do small states garner support?
- Discuss the applicability of Chapter VII of the UN Charter (Authorization of Force vs. Principle of Sovereignty).

Crisis and Challenge

- The issue of piracy is not just about "capture at sea", but also involves complex issues such as governance on land, judicial loopholes, and regulation of private security companies.
- The conference could lead to "sudden crisis events" (e.g., a navy hitting a fishing vessel by mistake, pirates hijacking a UN ship, etc.).

Introduction to the Topic

In the wave of global economic integration, gender pay gap has become an important bottleneck restricting inclusive economic development. This Model United Nations Economic and Financial Affairs Committee (ECOFIN) Conference focuses on the topic of "Pay Equity from a Gender Perspective: Promoting Inclusive Development of the Global Economy", aiming to provide an open and inclusive exchange platform for countries to discuss how to realize pay equity globally and promote sustainable and Inclusive Growth. The issue of pay disparity is widespread around the world, and in both developed and developing countries, women are often paid less than men in the workplace. This phenomenon not only jeopardizes women's economic rights and interests and limits their career development opportunities, but also wastes the economic development potential of society as a whole. Studies have shown that narrowing the pay gap will greatly enhance the efficiency of the labor market, stimulate women's creativity and productivity, and inject new vitality into economic growth.

In this ECOFIN conference, delegates will analyze the complex root causes of the pay gap from diverse economic and cultural backgrounds, including industrial structure, career choices, education levels, social and cultural attitudes, and enforcement of laws and regulations. Delegates will have the opportunity to share their country's experience and challenges in addressing gender pay gap, and exchange successful cases in policy formulation, legal protection, enterprise practice and education promotion. The conference will explore how to gradually eliminate gender pay inequality in the workplace through the formulation and implementation of comprehensive measures such as effective economic policies, labor laws and regulations, educational reforms and corporate social responsibility. At the same time, attention will be paid to the positive role that international organizations, non-governmental organizations and the private sector can play in addressing gender pay gap issues, seeking cooperation and concerted efforts on a global scale.

GIMUNC

It is expected that this meeting will result in a series of innovative, feasible and forward-looking draft resolutions that will provide valuable policy recommendations and guidelines for action for countries, international organizations and all sectors of society. These resolutions will cover everything from short-term measures to long-term strategic planning, aiming to provide strong support for the realization of gender equality at the economic and financial levels, and to ensure that every worker, regardless of gender, can receive remuneration commensurate with his or her abilities and contributions in a fair environment and share the fruits of economic development. Let us join hands and work together on the platform of the Model United Nations Economic and Financial Affairs Committee, with wisdom, courage and a spirit of cooperation, to eliminate pay disparities and promote inclusive development of the global economy, so as to jointly create a fairer, more harmonious and prosperous future.

Three Decades of MUN in China

Introduction to the Topic

Refugee children, namely children in refugee status, have been described by UNICERF as "children first". The refugee refers to a person that, according to the Convention and Protocol Relating to the Refugees (1951,1967),"owing to well-founded fear of being persecuted for reasons of race, religion, nationality, membership of a particular social group or political opinion, is outside the country of his nationality and is unable or, owing to such fear, is unwilling to avail himself of the protection of that country; or who, not having a nationality and being outside the country of his former habitual residence as a result of such events, is unable or, owing to such fear, is unwilling to return to it". The very status of frequently being on an unprotected and turbulent move makes refugee children face challenges and difficulties with their lives from every aspect of life. Repeatedly mentioned and given attention to by many United Nations organs, the protection of refugee children is problem well-worth our most exigent consideration.

Led by the UNHCR and supported the joint work of many UN entities, NGOs, the protection of refugee children is actually a topic the discussion of which requires a concrete base of abundant relevant knowledge. The delegates should understand how closely UNHCR works with other entities and what other entities do with job, or it shall be barely possible for them to raise any solution that may actually be of value. They should also understand the humanistic, rights-based and integrated approach of UNHCR. After understanding the scope and mandate of the committee, they should then try to utilize the documents at hands and try to form their own views about the issue itself, based on which they may finally draw up their own ideas, with their national stances also being taken into consideration. However, the cruel fact is that considering the time limits we are bound to have with the conference,as well as the possible academic levels of the delegates, the issue of the protection of refugee children may still be a topic too general with too many points that could be raised. In order to keep the committee functioning in an efficient and organized way, the Director would suggest that three to four suggested sub-topics should be provided in the Background Guide, so that the delegates may have a framework, on which they could bring about their own creative ideas.

MMXXV

The Director suggests that these sub-topics should be:

- 1) . Tackling health threats faced by refugee children;
- 2) . Ensuring Accessibility of refugee children to a quality education;
- 3) . Supporting refugee children in climate change challenges;
- 4). Empowering refugee children in pursuit of Sustainable Development Goals (the forth topic may be a bit challenging for the delegates, thus it is only mildly suggested while the other three sub-topics are more fundamental and should at least be covered during the discussion of the committee).

Introduction to the Topic

As the only functional special session in the GIMUNC 2025 conference system, the Crisis Committee is not a delegates' meeting in the traditional sense, but the core of crisis planning and dynamic interpretation of this conference. The Crisis Committee is composed of Crisis Assistants, who do not have country seats or debating mandates, and who are based in the Backroom (Crisis Control Center) to provide interesting and challenging dynamic support to the regular sessions in a "behind-the-scenes script writing + front-of-house interpretation" mode.

The Crisis Committee's main responsibility is to customize and target breaking news around the direction of each conference. From high-level gaming, diplomatic mediation, economic turmoil, to media manipulation, technological leaks, and social crises, the Crisis Committee will precisely push the plot to the designated venue in the form of news flashes, intelligence updates, or character appearances, guiding delegates to make judgments, collaborate, or disagree in highly uncertain situations.

One to two Crisis Assistants are responsible for crisis line planning and scene presentation for a committee. When the plot needs to move forward, the Crisis Assistants will play key roles such as press spokespersons, corporate executives, and other key players to enter the venue and drive the situation through speeches, interactions, and opinion building to trigger delegates to respond and react. At the same time, the Crisis Committee also keeps in touch with the media to provide first-hand dynamic content for intervention and public opinion response.

Unlike the "bottom-up" agenda-driven logic of the regular committees, the Crisis Committee represents the "top-down" design power of this conference's complex system. It is a multifunctional center that combines strategy conceptualization, text writing, character interpretation and situation control.

The Crisis Committee is not on the surface, but it influences the direction of every game. We do not belong to any country, but we shape the crises that every country faces.

The Organizing Committee will adjust the conference setup based on actual registration and venue conditions. Changes may include adding or removing committees, changing committee types, or reassigning delegates to ensure the smooth running of the event and a good experience for all participants.

Delegates applying for English-speaking committees should have a solid command of English in listening, speaking, reading, and writing, and be able to participate actively in discussions and document writing.

At the same time, we encourage everyone to step out of their comfort zone and make their own choice. Model UN is a great place to challenge yourself and grow.

If you need any help, feel free to contact us!
